

Inspiration from a horse living with only one eye

Brennan Equine Welfare Fund offering $10k matching gift to help horses like 'Alex In Motion'.

Upon hearing that an offspring of one of her personal horses was not doing well in his race career as he once was, Indian Hill native Linda Pavey reached out to the trainer of Alex In Motion, a 2011 Thoroughbred gelding, to inquire about his future. It was good timing, as the trainer said that Alex had run his last race and that he was being retired. The son of the 2005 Triple Crown contender Afleet Alex, Alex In Motion just couldn't match his sire, despite running 34 races in his career.

While learning that the reason for his retirement was musculoskeletal issuess, Pavey learned that in the last year of his career, Alex In Motion had been running with only one eye. The year before, during a race, some debris flew in his left eye and the resulting injury necessitated the removal of the eye.

While one-eyed horses certainly adapt to their surroundings and also continue their race career, it is without doubt that their disability requires a bit more fortitude than their full-sighted competitors and stablemates. The nature of animals with disabilities, and their ability to adapt and not dwell on their situations, is certainly inspiring to all.

Currently, Alex In Motion is living his retirement at Accredited Thoroughbred aftercare facility The Exceller Fund. He is being supported by a grant from Cincinnati-based Brennan Equine Welfare Fund (BEWF). Since his arrival at the facility, he has gained some weight to fill out from his racing form. His musculoskeletal soreness has gotten better as he has a large pasture to graze in and the constant movement keeps his joints and soft tissue active to reduce inflammation.

Brennan Equine Welfare Fund is a fund-raising, non-profit 501(c)(3) organization that was established in 2000 at the Greater Cincinnati Foundation by Linda Pavey in honor and memory of her horse, "Brennan", an off-the-track Thoroughbred. Grants from Brennan Equine Welfare Fund are used to serve equine rescue shelters across the country that provide dignity to final years of aged, injured, abused, starved and slaughter-bound horses, as well as those used in medical experimentation.

It is through donations that BEWF can give horses like Alex In Motion the aftercare that they deserve. No donation is ever too small make a difference.

If you would like to honor a special person or equine that has touched your life, or are interested in year-end giving
